Who We Are

As working professionals, Karlyn and Gail witnessed firsthand the tremendous burdens facing families who are juggling unimaginable responsibilities, and when faced with the care of an elderly parent, many struggle to handle it all.

When there is a crisis, families turn to healthcare professionals for answers. Lack of resources, changing rules in healthcare, budgetary cuts, regulations, and understaffing are just a few of the issues today’s healthcare professional face. Couple that with demands from families, a little help goes a long way.

For over 20 years, Karlyn and Gail have worked with seniors and their families and understand the unique burden they face. We know when a parent is either hospitalized or enters a new living environment, this is a very stressful time for families and patients. We believe having help supports quality care.
